“If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed” (Jn. 8:36). “For though I be free from all men, yet have I made myself servant unto all, that I might gain the more” (1 Cor. 9:19). When viewing both citations, they almost seem like an oxymoron. One speaks of freedom and the other speaks of slavery. Howbeit, Paul expresses great joy in the freedom found in Christ, but chooses also to be enslaved with the commitment to save others.

This is a great example for all of us who claim to be in Christ. The freedom that comes with being lifted up from this earthly sphere, and transported into the kingdom is amazing. My thoughts, energy, and commitment is to a God who cannot be touched by human hands or seen by human eyes. However, we feel Him constantly in our lives. Why? Because of our Independence Day which took place in Jerusalem in A.D. 33.

Three days after Jesus was laid in the grave, God freed Him from the chains of death. He then walked among men and gave hope to all true believers. He proved that true freedom was the abolishment of fear and the hope given to those who follow His steps.
