Paul wrote, “Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended: but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before” (Phil. 3:13).

If anyone had the right to feel unforgiven, it was Paul. How could he live with the conscience of causing so much harm to the body of Christ before his conversion? Did he have dreams of Stephen's death as he stood and watched the final stone thrown?

Most probably the hardest thing for Paul to do was forgive himself. Yet, he was able to do such because he forged forward, and trusted in the promises of God. A God who “so loved” that He sent His Son for the sole purpose of forgiving the sinner (Jn. 3:16). And Paul placed himself at the pinnacle of that tower of sinners (1 Tim. 1:15).

Hence, let's learn to forgive others, and ourselves!
